

Dear FCC,

I am truly angered to learn that the NAB is trying to stifle XM Radio's fabulous ability to give the American listener what they really want and have paid for, that the NAB is interfering with our ability to make a choice for quality, which has long been absent from commercial radio.

I have chosen XM Radio as my preferred medium to get news, music, weather and traffic reports because I no longer enjoy listening to AM or FM radio. Thanks to corporate mergers and the overwhelming interests of big business, the radio I used to love no longer offers me choice of music, local broadcasts - and the commercials are simply appalling. I prefer to pay for what I get - it's a great deal! - and I am delighted with XM radio in all respects. PLEASE do not interfere with ANY of the broadcasting that XM radio offers! It is unfair to take away the choices I have paid for!

If the NAB really wants to get their listeners back, they should go back to serving the customer and providing a decent service, rather than trying to stifle an enterprise that's doing it right.

Sincerely,

Geraldine Bryant
